

GROWING UP UNDER A FOREBODING BUDGET CLOUD: THE FORECAST FOR GOVERNMENT SPENDING ON CHILDREN

July 19, 2012

Dan Crippen is the executive director of the National Governors Association, where he identifies the most pressing issues facing states. He was the director of the Congressional Budget Office from 1999 to 2002. Crippen was a deputy assistant to the president for economic policy and assistant to the president for domestic policy in the Reagan administration. Crippen is a trustee of the Center for Health Care Strategies and a member of CBO economic advisors. He has also served as a senior adviser to the chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission and as a member of the CEO Health Transformation Community.

Olivia Golden (moderator) is an Institute fellow at the Urban Institute and the director of the Work Support Strategies initiative. Her research focuses on the service delivery, leadership, and policy strategies used by human services programs. Previous posts include director of state operations for New York's governor, director of the District of Columbia's Child and Family Services Agency, and assistant secretary for children and families at the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. She is the author of Reforming Child Welfare.

Marc Goldwein is the senior policy director of the Committee for a Responsible Federal Budget. In 2010, Goldwein served as the associate director of the National Commission on Fiscal Responsibility and Reform and, in 2011, he was a senior budget analyst on the Joint Select Committee on Deficit Reduction. He has conducted research for the Government Accountability Office, World Bank, the Social Security Administration historian, and Institute of Governmental Studies at UC Berkeley.

Julia Isaacs is a senior fellow at the Urban Institute, with expertise in child and family policy and government programs that serve low-income families. As a fellow at the Brookings Institution, she studied federal spending on children, child poverty, the effects of the recession on children, and economic mobility across generations. Isaacs was a division director at the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services and a budget analyst at the Congressional Budget Office.

Eugene Steuerle is an Institute fellow and the Richard B. Fisher Chair at the Urban Institute. His previous positions include deputy assistant secretary of the treasury for tax analysis, chair of the 1999 technical panel advising Social Security on its methods and assumptions, vice president of the Peter G. Peterson Foundation, and codirector of the Urban-Brookings Tax Policy Center. Steuerle was the original organizer and economic coordinator of the Treasury Department's tax reform effort leading to the Tax Reform Act of 1986. His blog is The Government We Deserve.